This Plan creates the framework for accomplishing the ambitious goals of preventing and ending homelessness. The objectives identify high level actions or system change needed to facilitate increased access to housing, economic security, health, and stability for specific populations. The strategies articulate steps that could be taken collaboratively by federal, state, and local leaders to address the differentiated needs of the populations identified.

What follows is a discussion of each objective, including the logic for the objective, its strategies, the lead federal agencies, and key partners. Following each objective are the strategies needed to accomplish that particular objective.

There are Signature Initiatives presented throughout related to Veterans, families with children, people experiencing chronic homelessness, and youth. These initiatives highlight new collaborative activity currently being undertaken by federal agencies and other partners. They focus on the target populations for the Plan. They will create opportunities for shared learning about specific strategies and approaches. They may also inform future policy and budget processes.

The table on the following page shows how different population groups are targeted within each of the strategies.

USICH staff are working in partnership with the 19 Council member agencies and with other key stakeholders to begin the planning that could operationalize each strategy. Through the planning and implementation process, the feasibility of the strategies will be assessed with some strategies taking longer to operationalize. Some strategies may prove not to be feasible to implement at scale.
